Salam, Sobia,

I've sent you the HALAL INGREDIENTS REPORT in a seperate e-mail. I have heard it being lawful in Islam that all soaps, toothpastes, medicines etc. are halal because these products have been processed during manufacture, plus we do not take them into our stomachs as food. So, yes, all toothpastes would then be considered lawful. Keep in touch with your comments, requests etc.!

I think it would be easier to put things in laimans terms. Basically have the letters at the end as a reference. But make the first few pages for the haram products and then following it would be what is halal. Maybe, adding the latest info about the juicy fruit gum and burger king to your list would be good to since these are eaten more on a daily basis compared to some of the items on your list.

I hope this helps.

Salam, Emran

The guest book link is now working. I tested a guest book submission and it came to my dr.umarazam@gmail.com address. However, the 'survey' link on the home page does not work [a similar test failed]. Will you link it to the dr.umarazam@gmail.com address too. I'm forwarding the e-mail [complete with all instructions] from Art Space with the new award logo on for replacing the duplicated icon in the 'awards and laudations' section. Please change the 'Parable in the Holy Quran' to 'Parables in the Holy Quran' in the left-hand links on the home page [it's now lower-case but just the 's' is missing].

I'll wait for your receipt and invoice, and the CD.

See you soon for your £110 deposit for hosting/deposit/amendments [I've seen the link to the proposed .co.uk site]. In the meantime I have to try and finish the Halal Ingredients Report and to plan the first page of the new site.

Regards,

Dr Umar
